UK'S TOP UNIVERSITY FOR MASTER'S DEGREE

Apply and Secure Admission into UK's Top University for Master's Degree

The United Kingdom is one of the most popular destinations for international students. Every year thousands of international students fly to the UK from different parts of the world to pursue their higher education. Studying for a Master's degree or MBA at UK universities is a fantastic opportunity both for students' academic and personal life. Students will get a huge choice of world's renowned institutions at which to study. Also, they'll be able to immerse themselves in the British's old and rich culture.

However, it takes both time and effort to apply to any Master's programme in the UK. A large number of UK universities have their own application deadline. On the other hand, a few universities accept applications throughout the year. Also, it is highly important to apply early which will increase your chance to get admission. Moreover, if you want to secure a scholarship or funding, university accommodation, Funding deadlines for courses beginning in September typically fall between January and March, and you'll be more likely to receive your preferred accommodation the earlier you apply.

In addition, students want to enroll in British universities not only for its high-quality education but also for the living standard in the UK, the state-of-the-art infrastructure, and other world class facilities. The British government and universities welcome more than 4,00,000 students every year.

There are two types of student visa available for international scholars in the UK. They are:

- ▶ Short-term study visa (6- 11 months)
- ▶ TIER 4 student visa (more than 6 months or depends on the length of the course)

We've discovered some essential points to secure admission at UK's top universities for Master's/ MBA programmes. They are:

1. Select Universities are Accepting Admission: We assume in this stage, you've done your research and found the course of your dreams at UK universities. Firstly, international students need to check whether the seats are available and the applications are still open or not. Moreover, as international students you need to bear in mind that deadlines for applications are typically earlier for foreign students. Most courses at British universities start in September, although some UK universities offer multiple intakes in one year.

4

- 2. Apply as Early as Possible: If your desired course or university is still accepting applications that would be great news for you. It's so appealing to wait before making your university application. However, the sooner you apply at UK universities the better it would be. If international students apply at the very beginning they will get more time to process the application, submit all your academic documents, and a statement of purpose. Furthermore, some university practices first come first serve policy as they have seat limitations. The students need to remember post-graduation courses in the UK are vastly different from the undergraduate degrees. The undergraduate courses are processed through UCAS but there's no centralized application system for master's courses. As a result, you have to apply to each university separately.

5

- 3. Attach the Required Supporting Documents: Prospective master's students need to submit a cover letter, a CV, all academic certificates, English language test score along with their application form. Furthermore, each UK university differs at master's level. However, the requirements should be clearly demonstrated on the university website. When the UK universities indicate that they require a standard degree as an entry requirement for a Bachelor degree, they actually want either a degree from any UK university or equivalent qualification from any other country. As the United Kingdom practices English as their first language, international students need to prove their English language proficiency, if English is not their first language.

- 4. Maintain the Deadline of Funding and Scholarship: As you got to know prior UK universities might have different deadlines for their master's programme, you also need to know that the deadline for scholarship also varies from university to university, even from department to department. Additionally, the deadline for funding closes before the main application deadline. As a result, the students need to be more careful who are seeking scholarships or funding. On the other hand, for some research programmes the funding comes from the professors. In that case, the students need to contact the professor as early as possible. The professors might ask to sit for a skype interview or they might want to know about students' interests. As these assessments take time, students should apply by considering these things.

5. Note Down the Key Deadlines in Your Calendar: Students can maintain a calendar to maintain the deadlines, documents list, and other things related to university admission. Because missing one of these documents or missing the deadlines might bring big trouble for you. Students can keep an eye on these

- ▶ Deadline for submitting application form and necessary documents (both academic and other). You need to make sure that you have all the paperwork in advance.
- ▶ You need to keep a record for the deadline for responding to your offer. Nothing can be worse than getting an offer but missing the deadline.
- ▶ Students also need to remember the dates of paying the application fees and tuition fees (if applicable).
- ▶ As accommodation is highly crucial for international students they might need to pay the accommodation fees in advance. Moreover, studying for a master's degree in the UK is great fun if you have proper accommodation.

Required Documents for Master's Programme

Although the requirement may vary depending on your university and course, some common documents need to be submitted for all master's programmes at UK universities. Those are:

- Statement of Purpose
- Academic transcripts and certificates
- Two to three references (academic and professional)
- A complete CV of the applicants
- A portfolio (required especially for creative degrees)
- A research proposal (required especially for Master's in Research programmes)
- A copy of your passport (if required)
- Proof of your English Proficiency Test (EPT) score (if English is not your first language)

There is a high possibility that those students who submit their application on time, usually receive quicker decisions as the admission council have everything they require.

9

In the end, the students need to submit any form or documents which can prove them as genuine students. If any document is not in English but necessary, they need to translate into English before submitting.
